Wastewater leak in Rankin Inlet

Start Date: June 10, 2021 End Date: June 17, 2021 Rankin Inlet, Nunavut

45 sec

The Department of Community and Government Services (CGS) would like to advise the community of Rankin Inlet of a wastewater leak that began at the Johnston Cove Lift Station on May 20.

Upon notice, CGS immediately began confining the spill and pumping it back into the lift station.

Efforts to identify and repair the pipe are ongoing. During this time, there may be a risk of leaking wastewater being discharged into the Johnston Cove area. All efforts will be made to ensure that the area will be cleaned up following the completion of the repair work.

Despite the limited risk, community members are advised to keep their distance from this site. Community members will be notified if additional water management measures are required during the repair.

CGS is engaged in ongoing consultations and communication with the municipality, the Department of Health, the Department of Environment and federal agencies regarding this incident.
